Dear Alexei Macheret,

Back to school doesn't have to mean meeting credit requirements or being told to take certain classes.

With online learning, you get to choose which courses bring you closer to the future you're building for yourself. So, we thought we'd give you some extra inspiration by suggesting a few electives from our catalog to get you started. Find your path below, or mix and match.

Class is in session. Whenever you're ready, so are we.

Path One: Programming & Design

Head to the metaphorical computer lab to learn how to code from scratch, put your design skills to the test, or take an advanced coding course series to really push things to the limit.

- Practical JavaScript: From Scratch to React offers hands-on 'Let's Build' sessions to build up your skills from writing simple JavaScript code to using powerful tools like React and Node.js to build seamless front- and back-end interfaces.
- Programming for Designers is where visual instinct meets code, helping you translate design thinking into working front-end features.
- Web Design for Everybody teaches you how to build engaging, dynamic webpages using core web technologies like HTML, CSS, and JavaScript.

Path Two: Innovation & Impact

The challenges are big, but so are the tools to address them. Explore how to approach design with communities in mind, alongside ways to use innovative technologies to support sustainable change.

- Green Skills grounds you in the science and strategy behind real-world climate action, from policy and leadership, to sustainable financial considerations and powerful geospatial technology.
 - Introduction to Socially Engaged Design approaches problem-solving with individual and community perspectives in mind, allowing you to create more inclusive, accessible, and useful design solutions.
 - Community Organizing for Social Justice teaches you how to build real partnerships with the communities you're trying to serve, from listening and trust-building to navigating power and privilege in your work.

Path Three: Voice & Influence

There's no red pen slashing X's through your papers in this speech class. Practice building compelling arguments, both written and oral, and let your confidence grow. Then apply what you've learned in the workplace to increase your influence.

- Good with Words: Writing and Editing lays the foundation for building quality arguments, from developing your ideas to translating them into a full piece of writing.
 - Good with Words: Speaking and Presenting takes you from the written word to confidently relay your thoughts and ideas to an audience.
 - Influencing People builds on your writing and speaking skills to help you be persuasive and effective when working with stakeholders, peers, and direct reports.
